The developmental visual diet decides whether learning builds or erodes cortical correspondence